

Dear all,

On behalf of the PhD students' team of the Institute of Environmental Biotechnology of IFA-Tulln, we would like to invite you to the DocDay Conference on November 6-7 2024.

The DocDay 2024 is a two days PhD conference taking place at the Department of Agrobiotechnology (IFA) in Tulln, Konrad-Lorenz-Straße 20 (Department of Agrobiotechnology, IFA-Tulln::BOKU).

The aim of the conference is to provide PhD students working at the Campus Tulln a platform to present their research and for networking. On the first day, invited external speakers will give presentations on their field of expertise and share experiences how life after a PhD could look like. The afternoon session will be dedicated to PhD students who are encouraged to present their research in form of a mini-symposium. This will be followed by a flash poster session. We also invite everyone who is interested in the different topics PhD students tackle at the Campus Tulln to join the symposium.

On the second day, methods and techniques used in the presented PhD work will be shown and the fields of application explained within the course of guided laboratory tours. The event allows an interdisciplinary exchange of the research groups at the Campus Tulln.

PhD students are invited to submit an abstract for an oral or a poster presentation by July 19 2024. In the attachment you can find the registration form and abstract template. Submissions are limited to 20 presenters. PhD students can obtain the ETCS of the course 970402 Bio-Resources and Technologies which is based on these two days program of the DocDay.

Furthermore, awards will be granted for the best talk and best poster. The first day of the conference will be closed by the DocDay After Party. All interested persons are highly welcome to join the presentations, scientific discussions and social events! It would be highly appreciated if you could motivate your PIs and Professors to join as well.

Please register a.s.a.p. so that we can plan the event accordingly!

Best regards,

The doc-day 2024 team

Send the registration form by July 19th 2024 to: docday-tulln@boku.ac.at

For more info: a.sieber@boku.ac.at