

The University of Veterinary Medicine, Vienna offers a full time position for a Technical assistant in animal behavior research

(unlimited duration) at the Konrad Lorenz Institute of Ethology, Department of Integrative Biology and Evolution. The application period starts May 15th and ends at June 4th 2012.

<http://www.vetmeduni.ac.at/de/infoservice/mitteilungsblatt/stellenangebote/#c22896>

Requirements: practical experience in animal behavior and strong organizational and English and German skills. Experience in ecological field work and with fish and birds are especially desirable.

Duties: The position entails assisting a scientist in conducting research by performing various tasks. Duties may include data collection and collation, assisting in the setting up and performing of experiments, recording behavioral data from videos, statistical data analyses, producing presentation slides and figures for scientific articles plus the potential opportunity to learn and perform tasks in a genetics lab to address additional questions about animal behavior.

Further Information

www.vetmeduni.ac.at/klivv

Univ.Doz. Dr. Richard H. Wagner

Richard.Wagner@vetmeduni.ac.at

Mag. Marlene Mann

Marlene.Mann@vetmeduni.ac.at Applications in English language including the reference number 2012/0517 should be sent to the staff department of VetMedUni Vienna, preferably by Email to bewerbungen@vetmeduni.ac.at or to Veterinärmedizinische Universität Wien, Personalabteilung, Veterinärplatz 1, 1210 Wien.