

Guest Lecture

Why gender matters for disaster risk reduction?

Guest Lecturer MSc PhD Virginie Le Masson

November
17th, 2015
at 17:30

Hörsaal 1 (EG 03),
Institut of Landscape
Planning,
Peter-Jordan-Straße 65,
Oskar Simony-Haus

MSc PhD Virginie Le Masson - research officer at the Overseas Development Institute, London- with a PhD in human geography, working with the Social Development and Climate and Environment programmes at ODI. Research interests combine social and gender aspects of environmental issues; Gender-Based Violence and Women's Rights; Disaster Risk Reduction; Climate change mitigation and adaptation. Extensive fieldwork experiences in India, Indian Ocean and the Philippines, and regular assignments in both south Asia and Africa. Solid expertise in delivering high quality field-based research and vulnerability assessments. Substantial experience in engaging with civil society organisations and donors.

Organisation und Kontakt: DIⁱⁿ Doris Damyanovic Telephone: 01/47654-7255 email: doris.damyanovic@boku.ac.at DIⁱⁿ Rita Mayrhofer Telephone: 01/47654-7253 email: rita.mayrhofer@boku.ac.at

Poster Layout: DIⁱⁿ Mandy Marginean, DIⁱⁿ Verena Beiser | Institut für Landschaftsplanung | Department für Raum, Landschaft und Infrastruktur

Universität für Bodenkultur Wien
Koordinationsstelle für
Gleichbehandlung und
Gender Studies

