§ 1 Common Provision

These house rules regulate the use and administration of rooms and facilities of the University of Natural Resources and Life Sciences, Vienna.

It serves as provision for safety, order and the smooth running of university life, especially with regards to the implementation of research and teaching tasks at the university that are founded on the safe operation on its facilities, devices, equipment and mechanical plants as well as the provision for the safety of members and other users.

§ 2 Responsibility

- (1) The management of the house regulations, especially the oversight of safety and order, rests with the Rectorate.
- (2) The organizational unit's managers are responsible for the compliance and implementation of the house regulations as well as its supplements within their field of responsibility.
- (3) Organizational units dealing with hazardous working materials or performing operations posing a greater risk must name responsible persons before the start of the activities. These persons have to receive appropriate training for their tasks. The Rectorate has to be provided information on these persons in charge and their areas of responsibility.
- (4) Prior to starting activities that belong to the scope of the Austrian Radiation Protection Act or the Genetic Engineering Law, the departmentally appointed radiation protection commissioners or representatives for biological safety must be contacted. If these are not installed at the department, the Rectorate, as operator of the facility, needs to be informed about the intended activities.

§ 3 Scope of Application

- (1) The scope of this document includes the infrastructure of all sites, buildings and rooms as well as all facilities and equipment (henceforth referred to as „university properties“) which are used by the university to fulfill its tasks.
- (2) Contracts on the leasing of property must include information that the house regulations and usage regulations apply.
- (3) The regulations of the house rules have to be observed by all persons on university properties. The following are authorized to use the university properties in the framework of the currently valid regulations:
 - a) university governing bodies,
 - b) staff members and students of this university,
 - c) persons who fulfill an assignment on behalf of the university,
 - d) outside persons in accordance with the provisions of the usage regulations
(§ 17 of this house regulation).

§ 4 Opening Hours

(1) The respective responsible members of the Rectorate set the opening hours. These are announced in the bulletin and by means of appropriate notices at the university's entrance doors.

(2) For special occasions (such as events) differing opening hours may be determined by the Facility Management (FM).

(3) Outside the opening times announced in the bulletin or determined differing opening hours due to special occasions, only the below listed persons are allowed to stay in the building. On request they have to show proof of their identity and function as one of the stated person mentioned in a) – f):

- a) university staff members in compliance with their functional duties or business,
- b) members of the university governing bodies,
- c) students, insofar as they have to carry out tasks in the framework of their university studies that are time- and place-bound,
- d) person fulfilling an assignment on behalf of the university governing bodies (such as security service, housekeepers, etc.),
- e) person with a special written permission of an organizational unit's manager,
- f) task forces in cases of emergency,
- g) persons accompanied by university members according to a) or b).

§ 5 Office Hours
